Excerpt: . . . 9 has been a significant mess that we inherited within the Department of the Interior. I wanted them to be here today because I wanted them to hear from you. And I want them to be part of the team as we try to put together the framework for energy development and those responsibilities that the Department of the Interior has as we move forward. Let me finally just make a comment, some comments that I want to make about the Department of the Interior. The Department of the Interior is a large Department. We oversee 20 percent of the land mass of the United States of America. We oversee 1.75 billion acres of the Outer Continental Shelf. Congresswoman Diana DeGette, good morning. We have responsibilities in lots of different ways that I know many of you are interested in. In the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, since the days...
