As previously pointed out, Australasia, Europe, and Asia were by far the largest contributors to the population of the State, the total from Africa, America, and Polynesia, together with those born at sea, amounting to only 1,752, all told, or somewhat less than one per cent, of the total number whose birthplaces were specified. The figures for each of these birthplaces at the dates of the Censuses of 1891 and 1901 are as follows, earlier information not being available: -- The individual countries which contributed most largely to the 1901 figures are: the United States of America (658), Canada (267), Mauritius (78), and Cape Colony (43). It will be noticed that during the intercensal period 1891-1901 the Africander or African-born population increased by 124, the American by 773, the Polynesian by 13,...
